Chardonnay from the place called “Les Hauts Brins”, soil very rich in limestone and very poor located at the top of the hillside on a terroir comparable to St-Aubin (combe & current of fresh air). Manual harvests carried out by the Domaine des Croix teams, native yeasts, fermentation and aging partly in old Corton-Charlemagne barrels, no new oak. This wine is vinified and aged on the estate. Only 2400 bottles produced.

The Monthélie “Les Hauts Brins” has a style reminiscent of the whites of St-Aubin: a Chardonnay more in tension than in texture, filiform and salivating. The chiseled and incisive character of the wine does not come from the vinification technique (i.e. adding sulfur) but from the very high limestone composition of the terroir from which it comes.
